MARKETING MATERIAL PREPARED IN CONNECTION WITH A PUBLIC OFFERING OF NOTES IN HUNGARY

Investors Seek / Can Accept

Investors in the Notes have exposure towards two European energy companies: RWE AG and E.ON SE.

The return on the Notes depends on the performance of the shares of these two companies, however investors do not participate in the direct performance of these shares.

The Notes offer a potential return equivalent to 7.5% per year of the nominal value of the Notes per year (excluding transaction fees) under favourable conditions. Please see page 2 for an illustration of how the observations/redemptions are intended to work.

Early termination / autocall feature: The Notes have a full investment term of four years. However, an early termination (“autocall”) may occur depending on the closing price of the underlying shares on the Annual Autocall Observation Dates.

Investor’s capital is at risk. The Notes are not capital protected at maturity and investors may lose some or all of their initial investment. Investors will lose at least some of their initial investment if the Final Price of any of the underlying shares is below 59% of their Initial Price. Investors could lose 100% of their investment if the Final Price of any of the underlying shares is 0.

Counterparty risk: Investors are exposed to the credit risk of the Issuer and the Guarantor. If the Issuer and Guarantor were to become insolvent or unable to meet their payment obligations, investors may lose some or all of their investment and any returns due, irrespective of the performance of the underlying shares.

Overview

The return on an initial investment is dependent on the performance of the two underlying shares: RWE AG and E.ON SE. Investors in the Notes will hold the view that the price of both shares will be at or above their respective Autocall Barrier Prices on any of the Annual Autocall Observation Dates, or above their respective Final Redemption Barrier Prices on the Final Valuation Date, per the table below.

Potential for Early Termination

If, on any Annual Autocall Observation Date, both underlying shares close at or above their respective Autocall Barrier Price, the Notes will terminate early and investors will receive a fixed capital growth payment (the “Autocall Payment Amount”) equivalent to 7.5% per year (excluding transaction fees). The potential Autocall Payment Amount rises each year and the Autocall Barrier Price declines, as reflected in the following table:

Term	Annual Autocall Observation Date (or, in the case of the final row, the Final Valuation Date)	Autocall Barrier Price (or, in the case of the final row, the Final Redemption Barrier Price)		Autocall Payment Amount (or, in the case of the final row, the Final Redemption Amount)

The amount returned to investors will be directly linked to the performance of the worst performing underlying share and will equal (i) the nominal amount multiplied by (ii) the Final Level of the worst performing underlying share divided by (iii) its Initial Price. In such a scenario, investors could lose up to 100% of their initial investment amount.
Fees	Please speak to your banker/advisor for details on fees and charges. Investors should be aware that Citigroup and its affiliates, and other third parties that may be involved in this transaction may make or receive a fee, commission or other compensation in connection with the purchase and sale of the Notes, hedging activities related to the Notes and other roles involved in the transaction. The Issuer will pay to the distributor up to 3.50% of the total value of the Notes as a distribution fee. The distributor may charge investors an additional fee or other costs. Investors must note that the market value of the Notes will be net of such fees and other compensation. Early termination of the Notes by the holder thereof may also involve payment by such holder of the Notes of applicable fees and other compensation.

At Maturity

If the Notes have not terminated early, the Notes will mature in the fourth year (on 10 August 2022, i.e. the Maturity Date) and the amount returned to investors will be determined as follows:

Investors will receive either:

- 100% of their initial investment amount plus a return of 30% if the Final Prices of both shares are equal to or above their respective Final Redemption Barrier Price (i.e. 65% of their Initial Price) on the Final Valuation Date; OR
- 100% of their initial investment amount if the Final Prices of both shares are equal to or above 59% of their Initial Price on the Final Valuation Date and at least one of the shares is below the Final Redemption Barrier Price; OR
- An amount between 0% and 58.99% of their initial investment amount if the Final Price of either share is below 59% of its Initial Price. In such a scenario, the investor's capital is at risk, and the amount returned to the investor will be directly linked to the final performance of the worst performing underlying share. The amount returned will be equal to (i) the nominal amount multiplied by (ii) the Final Price of the worst performing underlying share divided by (iii) its Initial Price. The investor may be exposed to currency risk if the denomination of the shares differs to that of their original investment and/or domestic currency.

Potential investors should note that:

The product is intended to be offered to retail investors who:

1. Have the ability to make an informed investment decision through sufficient knowledge and understanding of the product and its specific risks and rewards, with experience of investing in and/or holding a number of similar products providing a similar market exposure, either independently or through professional advice;
2. Seek capital growth, expect the movement in the underlying shares to perform in a way that generates a favourable return, have an investment horizon of the recommended holding period specified in the Key Information Document (KID) and understand that the product may terminate early;
3. Can accept the risk that the issuer or guarantor could fail to pay or perform its obligations under the product and they are able to bear a total loss of their investment; and
4. Are willing to accept a level of risk to achieve potential returns that is consistent with the summary risk indicator, specified in the KID.

The product is not intended to be offered to retail investors who do not fulfil these criteria.

Sensitivity Analysis at Maturity

The following scenarios may help investors to understand the potential return of the Notes should they not have terminated early. They are provided for illustrative purposes only, do not purport to give any indication of how the Note may perform in the future and are not a reliable indicator of future performance. Indicative returns should not be taken as any limitation on the maximum possible loss or gain.

The scenario analysis does not take into consideration any tax implications or fees. The below assumes that the Notes have not terminated early on any previous Annual Autocall Observation Date and illustrates the capital growth (loss) investors may expect as a percentage of the initial investment, payable at Maturity based on the indicative performance of the worst performing underlying share.

Risk Factors

The description of the investment risks that follows is not, and does not purport to be, exhaustive. Investors should make sure they understand these Notes and their associated risks before making the decision to invest. A more complete description of the risk factors can be found within the Offering Document for the Notes which is available on the website of the distributor as specified on page 1. In the event of any inconsistencies between this marketing material and the Offering Document, the Offering Document shall prevail.

Market Risk - Investors in the Notes should have prior experience of equity markets and of products featuring embedded derivatives, or should take steps to familiarize themselves with these products. Various factors may influence the market value of the Notes, including, but not limited to the performance of any underlying between the Initial Valuation Date and the Final Valuation Date, levels of volatility in the underlying markets and the implied future direction of these. Changes to any of these factors, remaining life to maturity and the credit quality of the Issuer, will affect secondary market prices for the Notes.

Credit Risk - Investors assume full credit risk of the Issuer, who is responsible for making the payments of the Notes and the Guarantor who has guaranteed all payments due under the Notes. This means that should the Issuer and/or the Guarantor become insolvent or fail in any way investors may not receive back any of their investment monies, nor even their initial investment amount. The profitability of the Guarantor's businesses, and in turn, its ability to meet its obligations under the guarantee, may be affected by global and local economic conditions, such as the levels and liquidity of the global financial and other asset markets, the absolute and relative level and volatility of interest rates and equity prices, investor sentiment, market confidence, inflation, and the availability and cost of credit.

Risk of Loss of Initial Investment - At Maturity, investors will receive less than their initial investment if, on the Final Valuation Date, the Final Price of any of the underlying shares is below 59% of their Initial Price. If the Final Price of any underlying share is 0%, investors will lose all of their initial investment.

Liquidity Risk - The Notes may have a long time period to maturity. Investors should be aware that there are no automatic rights of cancellation or withdrawal available to them. This means that unless the investor is able to sell their Notes on any secondary market the money invested in the Notes will not be available for the full period to maturity. Citi will endeavour to make a secondary market in these Notes, but does not guarantee that a secondary market will exist. Investors seeking to liquidate/sell positions in these Notes prior to the stated Maturity Date may receive substantially less than their original purchase price.

Early Sale Risk - During the life of the Notes, investors may be able to sell the Notes on the secondary market subject to liquidity conditions. If the secondary market price exceeds the initial investment there is the potential to realise a profit prior to maturity by selling the Notes. The secondary market price will reflect a number of factors including interest rates, volatility and issuer buy-back levels on the date on which an investor wants to sell the Notes. As a result, there can be no assurance that a selling Note holder will receive a price equal to or in excess of the amount initially invested.

Reinvestment Risk - If the Notes are redeemed early in accordance with the early termination / autocall feature, the amount received by the relevant holders will be limited to the relevant Autocall Payment Amount and no further amount shall be payable in respect of such Notes. In this case, investors will be subject to a reinvestment risk, as they may not be able to replace their investment in such Notes with an investment that has a similar profile of potential returns and risks as the relevant Notes.

Event Risk - The terms of the notes also provide that if certain exceptional events occur (1) adjustments may be made to the notes and/or (2) the issuer may terminate the product early. These events are specified in the Offering Document and principally relate to the underlyings, the Notes and the Issuer. The return (if any) you receive on such early termination is likely to be different from the scenarios described herein and may be less than the amount you invested.

Suitability Risk - Investors should determine whether an investment in the Notes is appropriate to their particular circumstances and should consult with their own independent advisers to determine the consequences of an investment in the Notes and to arrive at their own evaluation of the investment.

Currency Risk - If the Notes are denominated in a currency other than the investor's normal currency of account, changes in exchange rates may have an adverse effect on the value of their investment in the normal currency of account. This may cause a loss of principal.
